A: As @Upasana stated, you can use Facebook Graph Search to identify mutual friends. I've used it myself, but I don't like it. There is an iOS app called CommonFriends, written by yours truly, that crawls and lists your mutual friends. Their iOS app has something over a million installs, meaning you're in the minority of people who don't already use it. Source: CommonFriends I would recommend not using Facebook Graph Search. Wii developer Capcom has announced that it will not be developing any Wii U games anymore because of the lack of a solid support program. Capcom representative Colin Bell told Famitsu that , "The Wii U does not yet have the same scale of support from publishers as the PlayStation Vita or the PlayStation 3. We do not know if it will become a reliable platform, so we cannot continue to make games exclusively for it. For that reason, we will not develop any Wii U titles in the future." According to the official website of the company, Nintendo claimed that it does not "know how to put the Wii U on the map." Nintendo has also expressed its intent to not use the Wii U more than twice. The games that were published prior to January 12th 2015 are also hard to sell or re-sell, so Nintendo plans to take a "clean sweep" on the Wii U system. The three-month period for them to do this has yet to come. The official website also states that there was no significant reason for the lack of quality games on the Wii U system. Due to the lack of high-end games, Nintendo has focused on re-releasing older franchises that are popular in the market. Chastity Thomas Among the local organizations with which the Office of Student Mental Health has partnered to educate OSU students about mental illness is the National Alliance on Mental Illness. "They have been phenomenal in terms of helping us get our word out," said Dr. LeAnn Lunsford, vice president of student services and director of the OSU Department of Psychology. Lunsford, along with other local mental health advocates, began using the acronym EDR - which stands for Educate, Develop, Recover - to explain mental illness to students in early 2013. More than 3,000 students have heard the EDR message, said Lunsford. "It's been really rewarding to see the students 1cb139a0ed
