Get IP Tracker is a tool to track a person's computer's IP address. The software will notify you when they's IP address is moved or changed, and will display their current IP address. The program will track IP addresses from any Windows PC, and it will display them on a graphical interface. Network locations Although Get IP Tracker is not going to detect any changes in your network router settings, it will be able to detect when your computer moves from one network location to another. Cases like this can happen when you're outside of your home network, and you plug your laptop into another network. Thus, it will be able to detect when your computer is connected to a new network and notify you about it. Getting notified Get IP Tracker does not affect any settings on your computer, and it will not make any changes to your computer's file system. Thus, you are going to be notified immediately when you moved from one network location to another, and you will not be notified about any changes to your computer's file system. Visibility When you're moving around outside of your home network, it's always better to be aware of the fact that someone else might be able to detect your IP address. This is why the program will notify you when someone else is connected to the same network as yours. It will also notify you when your IP address is changed, even if you don't change it yourself. You might
