Available Versions Versions 1.6.0-rc2+ Windows Azure SDK for Ruby provides a set of tools for Ruby developers who want to integrate Azure within their applications in a seamless way. I have installed the toolkit from this page: So i have used the default settings. My question is, does anyone know how to modify a csv file generated by the rdutil? Is there a way to modify the csv file in a way that could be used to import to SQL Azure table? If not, is there a way to import the csv file generated by the rdutil into Azure SQL Server? A: It doesn't look like it is possible to modify the csv-file. I have inspected the file and didn't find any place for modification. When I write an import (either to Azure SQL or to a table) the csv-file is read and the values assigned to the respective table rows. The name of the column is the same as the table-name. The value is what is defined as the value in the schema of the table. So, I think you have to play with the schema or give some other value to the table-row.
