Features Key:

A campaign in which the player controls the hero (called the "governor") who must ascend to the top ranking by conquering the best dungeons and defeating the strongest monsters.

• All of the dungeons, monsters, enemy strengths, and bosses are randomly generated.

• An extensive story path that includes 3 main story paths, 8 guild story lines, and 2 main quest paths, that can be followed and paced in any order.

• One of the main story paths, "Heroes' Journey," is in parallel with the main story path. Players who complete the story path of the main characters can also explore the contents of this parallel story path with the characters.

Another "new" story path we created, "Starvation," includes a new combat system called Condition Match, in which "expansion" occurs for the first time. Players can perform Condition Match with other players in co-op (co-op mode), and fight with other players who are in the same condition as them, in a 1-on-1 battle, in an arena mode.

• A variety of quests which can be freely quest mapped (quest mapped is a system that allows players to communicate and exchange information in a quest using a map.)

 $\,\circ\,$ Along with the quest, players can also acquire items from a quest NPC.

The Tarnished Lords (Story mode) include:

The 1st ranking castle.

I want a more relaxed work environment, and some "meaningful" work to go with my flexible hours. What do you think of finding a job that allows you to balance the demands of a demanding job with a fun and interesting occupation? Or would you rather deal with more stress and less perks? Hey Etsuko, that's a good question. A lot of what I say here is just from a personal perspective and comes from years of working in the corporate world. I'm quite in touch with the standard work culture and perks, but I have no idea about the legal world. There aren't very many jobs out there that are "fun and interesting," which I guess is why I left my firm after 8 years. There was definitely a huge difference in the work environment and there were no day trips or anything like that. I felt like I was sinking in a sea of work, like I was drowning and they were just tossing me a life preserver. This is the part where I'm definitely not biased when I say I got laid off. It was just a part of change. I have no idea what your legal career has been like, but in the firm I worked at I was paid decent money and had benefits and a strong 401k match. I also had a lot of variety, as I was hired to do a variety of tasks including litigation support and studying contracts. This allowed me to learn a lot from different perspectives, and I got to change my role every few years, so it didn't feel like I was stuck in o
