What's new in Norega(Full Expansion):

Mike McDonald (Texas), James Dickens (West Virginia) Block Busters is a success, and the sky's the limit for the offense now that Vito Stellino is the OC and Walt Harris is the O-line coach. I would suspect that they will move Brannon Saterfield to RB at least some time this season, depending on the strength of his knee. Running back is a lot like player personnel in that you take what you have, and hope for the best. He is fast. He is a solid blocker. He has the same injury issues. There is no reason not to think that the same results will be had. *We kick mid-morning off with Mike McDonald, the likely starter, making his decision to enter the Draft in the perfect spot. He is the North Iowa Pizza Johnson of the QB position. As much as he wants to put the team first, he can't see turning down money and known media exposure. He knows that it will be easy for a team to fill a void at QB as the year goes on. Money matters, and he loves to see his name in the hat. *No one notices, but James Dickens #86 is suddenly a senior. He even has a puncher's chance at landing a prize. I got an interesting email a little while ago from Italy. "I am a well known European Gymnastics coach. I am very excited about your development and would like to confirm that I have all the necessary clearing rights from the Italian federation for an NCAA tryout in you name. I would gladly give you a summer tour of Europe (Switzerland, France) and any necessary coaching care. I also arranged a very powerful and famous Life Coach guaranteeing access to a large investment of money if the opportunity exceeds expectations. How big would it be if the Italian Senate could include you in the Italian Olympic Team for the 2020 Tokyo Olympics? (max) 7 for €126M) ..." Dickens should be happy with this. He's never going to be a starter on any team. But he has strong enough background to work with a team and provide leadership if the need arises, and the

Italians seem to think the world of him. *There was a good article just published on Iowa State's current QB situation by Pete Crisman of KXAN/Courier-Journal (see the published links below). There are some good bits
