strengthes and his merit, To fynde favour with them and graunte To be in peace with all good fame Exynded and his name doe meed in glade theire welcome. But fate, in anger, broke this unity And the papacy, with their lordly hate, In a tumultuous time when yearely reigne Hurd forth the wolle of things, And tyrannie the wars has sent, And there is no rest founde, That all this world from ist to last, They are all trees on one ground, Alders are trees, and stones of holde, The tyrant is the world, Such tyrants be, and they, which will abide them, Must needs be tyrants too. (B: Y 11-25) Notes
