I don't quite understand why it doesn't work? A: Your link is broken, because your script has a data- in it, so it isn't interpreted as script, but as data, and since there's no valid plugin directive in your script (as you haven't provided a plugin that runs all, I assume you mean "all"), it won't run anything. On a final note, as you've run out of ideas and made it quite clear that you don't know much about PHP at all, I should inform you that it is a very bad idea to use "keygen" in a filename: that is for game keys, which should be a single word. "It's turning out to be a pretty good year at the Trans-Am," said Brad Daugherty, vice president, Home Building for Lennar. "We do not have any shortage of inventory, and pricing and interest rates are both low. We'll continue to do what we do, and build for the future." Despite more than 1,500 homes sold so far this year, the volume of homes being built is down. "We don't have as many builders in this market today as we had earlier in the year," said Cary Roy, president and chief executive officer, The Building Industry Association of Southern Nevada. "It's not that the builder market is growing, it's that builders are taking that vacation time off to recoup from the downturn," he said. Roy said sales in the past few years have been driven primarily by first-time homebuyers. It's been a different story this year. "This year it's all buyer-backed sales," he said. "There have been more buyers than there have been sellers. "Homes are going up in value and people are looking for safer places. Houses are most profitable when they're priced right, and there are no indications that prices are going to be coming down," Roy said. Chris Koza at the Pacific Union Group of Southern Nevada said buyers' attitudes also are responsible for the increase in sales. "We're not seeing as many sales as we did a year ago," he said. "And for the first time since the recession, we're seeing a lot of first-time homebuyers. They're doing it because they think the market is going to be better this year." Koza said the only negative thing about the market
