Doug Ducey announced new measures Monday to speed up coronavirus testing, implement restrictions to close bars and nightclubs and begin to limit the spread of the virus. Ducey's speech, from the governor's office in Phoenix, comes in the wake of the most widespread shutdown of nonessential business Arizona has ever seen, with most private sector employees ordered to work from home and businesses closed to the public except for groceries, pharmacies, banks, gas stations and the services essential for health and safety. Businesses that are allowed to remain open include restaurants, gyms and grocery stores. Ducey said Arizonans can expect significant numbers of nonessential workers to be called back to work. "Arizona will be testing lots more people, and we're going to see positive tests increase dramatically," he said. The state has the ability to distribute test kits to health-care facilities and more than 5,000 of those kits were sent out to doctors and hospitals in the state for drive-by testing. Ducey's order closes bars, restaurants, casinos and nightclubs within 30 miles of the state's beaches will remain open. Ducey's order: Bars, restaurants, casinos and nightclubs near state borders must be closed. — Governor Doug Ducey (@GovDougDucey) March 16, 2020 State laboratory testing will be prioritized on all symptomatic people with travel history or exposure to the disease in China, Iran, Europe or South Korea or in another country designated by the federal government as a high-risk destination. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommends that tests be prioritized for people who have been in China, Iran, Europe or South Korea in the 14 days prior to their
