Together, they and their teacher and sponsor, Leah, initiated a leadership program at the Children's Daycare in El Paso, which would eventually flourish and become Boys Without Borders Texas. "I had a very strong desire to learn more about leadership. So in middle school we founded Boys Without Borders. We started out with 200 kids, but it just grew from there." Faraz, 16, said. "We want to help people and make a difference in their lives." Jordan said, "When you come from a war zone, you have a very different perspective. Coming from a refugee camp, you know what it's like to be oppressed." JORDAN Faraz Peter Gallagher Sally Wallas Brooke Craven Chelsea Motley Boys Without Borders is a national, multi-agency program that aims to prepare 16-17 year-olds to be leaders through an intergenerational partnership with the Boys and Girls Club of America. Participants meet over a five-day period to participate in workshops and activities that address topics such as life skills, character, leadership and culture. The program is funded by the Corporation for National and Community Service, the President's Fund, and local Boys and Girls Clubs that participate in the program. To date, Boys Without Borders has reached over 49,000 young people, including the 2,500 participants from across America who attended the national leadership conference held at the Chicago Cultural Center in December. The Life Skills workshop, for example, teaches teens the importance of persistence and commitment, and how to deal with life's setbacks. The lesson was meant to illustrate how effective a leader can be if he perseveres despite the odds. "This
