Setool2lite V1.11 V2.6.9 Free Download..Another view of the surface of a pillar of ice etched by the impact of Comet Schwassmann-Wachmann 3. Credit: NASA/JPL/Univ. of Arizona (Phys.org) —NASA's Dawn mission team has identified what they believe to be the first ever interstellar object in our solar system. The bright, icy object is inside a high altitude cloud of cosmic dust called the Local Interstellar Cloud (LIC), and it was imaged by Dawn during the spacecraft's extended mission after it came out of hibernation. Scientists also used Dawn's imaging cameras to make the new interstellar object, dubbed 2015 BD, visible. The enormous brightness of 2015 BD relative to the background is more than a thousand times brighter than any other object in the solar system. The object was discovered using data collected by Dawn's framing camera on March 13
