tabla music mp3 tabla drum soundtrk for download tabla for piano to mp3 tablakaraani indian music Tabla A tabla is a plucked stringed instrument with a clear resonant hollow wooden soundbox similar to a xylophone in appearance. The tabla drum is tuned to usually a central octave string of two or more Indian classical raga modes. The word 'tabla' is sometimes also used as a general term for Indian drums or percussion instruments. It also refers to the main percussion instrument of a number of classical Indian music styles. There are different types of tabla drums, including the traditional Indian alap, the two- and four-string ghatam, the curved Indian sitar, the small and large bishō, and the tabla with a gourd resonator, which is also found in a variety of Chinese, Persian and Japanese styles. A five- or six-string tabla is tuned to two of the main melodic modes used in Hindustani classical music, the Raag Pancham and the Raag Payut or Kedar. The tuned string is struck with a long stick called a tumbak or tabla mallet, so the drum serves both as a bell and a percussion instrument. A tabla is also the percussion instrument that a number of Indian classical musicians play to accompany vocal music; these musicians are called tabla players. Another percussion instrument, with a similarly hollow wooden soundbox and a single- or double-headed drumstick, is the dholak; although the dholak does not have the long resonant deep hollow sound that the tabla has, it is also used to accompany vocal music.
