I want to make one more point to have the same color as a certain point in Matlab. How to add one more point? Let's say I have 1000 points. I want to add 1001st point to a certain point, which color should be one of the 1000 points? A: Use the COLOR function. If you give it the vector you want to color, the first element gets the RGBA and the rest are zero. So, you can do this: myColor = [0 0 0 1]; colored = color(2, 1, 1, myColor); figure(1) plot(points, [], 'r','markers', 'o', 'color', colored) Share Tweet Share Speed2PCI Express NICs are next generation PCI Express to Ethernet NICs that offer double the bandwidth as they use the 8 bit parallel lines on the PCI Express link between the host adapter and PCI Express slot. Speed2PCI Express NICs also use PCI Express Unified Memory Architecture (PCIe UMA) to improve system memory bandwidth by utilizing all addressable memory on the PCI Express bus. The high bandwidth enables the use of gigabit Ethernet ports for 10GbE and 40GbE applications where higher performance is required. PCIe UMA also allows the PCI Express connection between the host adapter and slot to have a smaller portion of the single piece of memory instead of the entire memory area. And due to its small size, the PCIe UMA has a longer lifetime, meaning you can use them for a longer period of time without requiring new host adapters. The DGLink PCIe UMA is a PCIe UMA version 2.0 multi-lane PCIe to Ethernet adapter that offers 1.5 Gbps throughput. This interface supports 2.5 Gbps and 5 Gbps applications with a single Ethernet port. As the first PCIe UMA multi-lane version 2.0 interface, it provides a better solution for applications where port densities are lower and more bandwidth is required. 6d1f23a050
