on my audi s6, i'm running mmi version 5150. mmi shows the bluetooth icon all the time. if i want to send or answer a call through the car radio, i turn off the display of the bluetooth icon and go to "other devices" in the list of the car mmi. i put the phone to my ear and answer or end the call through the phone. when i finish the call, i turn on the bluetooth icon and the phone is back in the list of other devices. i just have to tap the bluetooth icon and the phone will appear in the list again. my audi was fitted with mmi 2g version 5140, i have hooked up an ipod touch to my bluetooth audio and was able to access pandora, but i also had a problem with getting the voice control to work. i tried following the instructions on vim but it would still not work, so i kept my bluetooth audio turned off on the car so i could use the ipod touch for voice controls. i went to other devices and audio control--> voice control--> i found my ipod on the list but nothing happened when i pushed play on the ipod touch. my car does have a car phone so i tried calling someone on my phone and that worked but it kept calling me back. i uninstalled the car phone and then my audio controls started working again but not voice control. i could not get my phone to connect to the car bluetooth audio. i installed a new driver for the car but that did not help. by this point i was about to throw the ipod touch away but then i realized i could not get the voice control to work. so if you have issues with your voice control i suggest using the ipod touch for audio if you want to use pandora.
