Global and U.S. stocks were sharply higher on Tuesday, though losses on Wall Street erased a previous gain. European stock markets advanced and a gauge of financial conditions in Asia was weaker. European stocks were up about 1.3 percent at 2:34 p.m. E.T., boosted by a 1.4 percent rally in Germany and a 1.3 percent gain in France. In the U.K., the FTSE 100 was up 0.4 percent, while the DAX climbed 1.3 percent. The Dow Jones industrial average surged 181.07 points, or 0.88 percent, to 14,857.74, the S&P 500 was up 16.79 points, or 0.95 percent, at 1,641.94 and the Nasdaq climbed 64.63 points, or 1.23 percent, to 3,630.44. All three indexes rose sharply after finishing on Monday with slight gains. In another sign of continued investor sentiment, the euro fell 0.4 percent to $1.0774 and the Japanese yen strengthened 0.3 percent versus the dollar at 112.41. A high-powered consumer confidence index published Tuesday showed that Americans see little chance of an economic downturn in the coming months. The so-called Conference Board survey showed the index rose 0.1 percent to 160.3 last month, the strongest level since November 2008. United States consumer confidence rose in November, but optimism about the outlook slowed in November from October as the number of respondents that believe their own financial situations are improving fell to its lowest level since the mid-2000s. The Nasdaq composite retreated after climbing to a record high last Friday on strength in financial shares. However, the technology-dominated Nasdaq traded around the flat line, while the S&P 500 snapped four straight sessions of gains.
