The Specialized Neurosciences Probes comprise a high-end array capable of recording from a variety of cortical cells at rates up to two kilohertz. The system integrates a number of high-density probes with a 0.5 mm diameter electrode spacing to accommodate dense electrode arrays. It consists of five modules, or stages, that allow the system to be reconfigured to match the needs of a particular experiment, giving complete freedom over choices ranging from the precise impedance level of individual electrodes to the number of recording sites on a given probe. Applications The Specialized Neurosciences Systems are designed to record from populations of neurons in the cortex. A high level of portability is achieved through the modularity of the design.
