If you have any issues with DevExtreme UI, please report those to the DevExpress support page. We will get back to you in 24-48 hours. In case of urgent issues please contact us at support@devexpress.com Developers can download and use the .NET Framework and other XAF products based on an Open Source Licence (OSL). Each developer can choose the OSL best suited to their development needs. We also make the "devexpress" OSL freely available so that .NET users can evaluate the components for their needs. The code snippet shows how to use the ChartBuilder to display various charts in a Visual Studio ReportViewer application. The first line of the code snippet shows how to use the ChartBuilder to create a LineSeries chart from a series of the FullStackedLineSeries type. The FullStackedLineSeries type is the most versatile type and has no upper limit. You can easily add multiple series to this type. In the following snippet, the ChartBuilder creates three LineSeries and adds all series to the series property of the ChartControl. The ChartBuilder automatically prepends the data to the chart1.Series[0].DataSource and the data1 series. If necessary, you can customize the prepended data by adding series to the chart1.Series collection. You must specify either the .NET Framework

Assembly or the .NET Standard Assembly to use the provided chart or chart component class in a chart. This can be changed by changing the TargetFramework property in the project file. You can also modify the target framework for the Charts.WinRT.Full.Full or Charts.WinRT.Full.WinRT file.
